How is (h) written in syllabics?

13. The (hk) and the (ht) belong to the syllable just before them when they are at the end of a word.

When there is a vowel after the (k) or (t) then the (h) forms a syllable with the syllable or vowel before it, and the (k) or (t) with the vowel which follows it.

 <!'Cc What happens when there is a vowel after the (k) or (t) in hk or ht? When there is a vowel after the (k) or (t) in the (hk) or (ht) group, the (h) becomes part of the vowel or syllable before the (h). The (k) forms a syllable with the vowel which follows it. The same is true with the (t). It forms a syllable with the vowel which follows. The same is true in the syllabics. Look at these words which use (hk). e tō-tahk Δ DC× e tōtahk ď·<"ρ wāpahki wā-pah-ki

When a vowel follows the (k) or (t), with which syllable does the (h) form a syllable?

15. Then the (h) forms a syllable with the syllable before it. Then it is always written as (").

Let us learn our new words now. They	end with (hk)) or with (I	ht).

What two endings are used with these words? _____

16. The two endings used with these words are: (hk) and (ht).

This time we are giving you the syllabics and you are asked to write the words in English letters and give the English meaning.

SPECIFIC USE OF (HK) and (HT)

The sound of (h) when it is used before a vowel is like the English (h). When it is used after a vowel, or at the end of a syllable, you bring your tongue almost to the roof of your mouth and breath out the (h).

The sound of the letter (k) is a voiceless stop. It is between the English hard (g) and (k). When it is used at the end of a word, it is a closed stop. (H) is written ("). (K) is written ($^{\sim}$) when it comes at the end of a word. But when the two are used together at the end of a word, it is written ($^{\times}$) in syllabics.

(Hk) when used at the end of a word forms a syllable with the syllable or vowel before it. (Hk) when a vowel follows the (k), the (h) forms a syllable with the vowel or syllable before it, and the (k) makes a syllable with the vowel after it.

The sound of the (h) in (ht) is the same as if it were used at the end of syllable. You bring your tongue almost to the roof of your mouth and breathe out the (h). The (t) is a sound between the English (d) and (t) and is a closed stop when it is used at the end of a word.

When the (ht) is at the end of a word, it is written in syllabics as (").

(Ht) when used at the end of a word form a syllable with the syllable or vowel before it. (Ht) when a vowel follows the (ht), the (h) forms a syllable with the syllable or vowel before it, and the (t) forms a syllable with the vowel which follows it.
